MCGILL HAVE SPEEDY TEAM FOR AQUATICS

Wonderful Form Shown by Men at Yesterday's Practice

MEET NEXT WEDNESDAY

One More Practice, After Which McGill Team Will Be Chosen

Last night the Swimming Club held its scheduled trial at the Y.M.C.A. tank. There was a very encouraging turn-out, both in numbers and in ability. About fifteen or sixteen men, besides the regular swimmers, were present. In all the trials some excellent showings were made and some very strong swimmers were found among the new-comers.

Times were taken over distances of 25, 50, 75 and 100 yards. In the first of these R. H. Patten and R. W. Beattie, of Science, and G. M. Webster, of Arts, proved their worth by covering the distance in a time equal to that of many well-known swimmers. They showed wonderful form and will prove very strengthening to the McGill team which will take part in the M.A.A.A. meet. Beattie and Webster are new members of the Swimming Club, and it is hoped that there will be more men like them who will take enough interest in aquatics to at least turn out and show what they can do.

The next practice is to take place on Thursday, 27th, between five and six. This will be the final practice before the coming M.A.A.A. meet, which is scheduled for next Wednesday. The team representing the college will be chosen immediately after this try-out. All men who can swim, or who think they can swim, are urged to turn out on Thursday, as this will be their last chance.

A point to be remembered by men who think they are not fast enough is that all the races are handicaps and so everybody has an equal chance. Any information desired can be obtained from either S. S. Pitt or G. H. Fisk, both of Science.

The following men will probably form the nucleus of the team which will represent McGill at the meet: R. H. Patten, G. M. Webster, R. W. Beattie, M. E. Walker, S. S. Pitt, J. Notman, G. H. Fisk, G. G. Millar.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE UNION DANCE

Tickets Selling Well Among Students and Graduates

The much talked of Union Dance will be held next Friday evening. The Union House Committee have made extensive preparations for this function, the event of the college social season. This dance will be a formal one, and all those attending are assured a very enjoyable evening. As it is the first formal dance held under the auspices of the Union House Committee since the beginning of the war, it is in rather a unique class.

Thus far, the tickets have been selling in a promising way, and the number disposed of augurs well for its success. The list has been opened to graduates, who are taking full advantage of their opportunity.

The floral decorations will be in the hands of one of the leading florists; the refreshments are being looked after by one of Montreal's largest caterers; the music will be of the finest procurable in the city. Hence it is patent that no effort has been spared to make the dance an entire and unqualified success. Devotees of the terpsichorean art who have attended previous dances at the Union are well acquainted with the excellence of the floor.

With perfect appointments on every hand, the Union Dance should be the event which will be handed down as a function worthy of being emulated and admired by all future students of Old McGill.

As was mentioned in yesterday's Daily, the number of tickets is strictly limited, in accordance with the desire of the Committee of Social Functions. Tickets should be bought immediately, and can be procured either at the Union or from the members of the Union House Committee.

MCGILL AND LOYOLA TO PLAY TO-MORROW

Game to Be Staged for the Benefit of the Salvation Army Drive

What promises to be one of the most interesting matches of the season will be played on Thursday evening, when McGill meets Loyola in an exhibition hockey game for the benefit of the Salvation Army Drive. The two teams have been in the race in the City League right from the start, and were only shut out from the championship by a small margin.

In the games between the two teams this season the honours have been divided. The first game in which McGill participated this year was played with Loyola, and the Notre Dame de Grace boys were victorious. In the return match, played in the second half of the schedule, however, McGill succeeded in winning. The game on Thursday night will be a stiff contest, as each of the teams wants to get the odd game.

The winner of the game to-morrow night will play off with the Vickers team, and as each of the college teams are anxious to pit their strength against the champions, they will put up a hard fight in the initial game. Vickers have lost some of their best players owing to a suspension ruling by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, and it is a question whether they will be able to stand up before the fast teams of either of the colleges. McGill is especially anxious to meet the Vickers team, as she is not yet satisfied that the league champions had the edge on themselves. In the first game between the Red and White and Vickers the result was a tie, and in the second game the East End team won out by the margin of one goal, which was scored in the last stages of the play.

It is expected that there will be a large turnout of McGill men to see the game, as, outside of the interest in the contest, the proceeds are going to a cause which has the hearty support of everyone.

Previous to the main game of the evening, a contest will be staged between the Senior teams from Westmount High School and Lower Canada College. These teams have been showing an excellent brand of hockey all season and are sure to provide a speedy game.

Between the games there will be an exhibition of fancy skating by members of the Winter Club. This opportunity to see some of Montreal's best skaters is one that should not be missed, and will no doubt be one of the main attractions of the evening.

ARTS '19 MAN BACK

Another former member of Arts '19, who has returned from overseas, is Gunner V. K. Symonds, who arrived in the city last night from England. Gunner Symonds is a son of Dr. H. Symonds, vicar of Christ Church Cathedral, and a brother of Pte. S. R. Symonds, Arts '18, who was taken prisoner early in the war and later removed to Switzerland. Gunner Symonds, while at McGill, was a member of the staff of "McGill Daily," and took part in inter-class athletics. He enlisted in 1916 with the McGill Siege Battery, raised by Major Tait, and went overseas with that unit.

MCGILL MEN BREAK EVEN AT CENTRAL

The Senior Team Lose Out in a Hard Fought Game

INTERMEDIATES WIN

Double the Score on Central Y.M.C.A. Team

In the games with the Central "Y." Basketball teams, McGill, last night, won one, lost one. In the first match, the college Intermediates kept up their splendid work and doubled their opponents' score, 44-22. The second game, between the college Seniors and the Central "Y." squad, was fast and keen from beginning to end. Although McGill led at half-time, Central "Y." forged ahead, bit by bit, and finally won the game by a 29-23 score.

The Intermediate match started off rather slowly, with the college boys going none to well. For the first few minutes the "Y.M." squad had it all their own way, but eventually McGill settled down and Laisley found the basket. Carl Forbes, just returned from France, and out for his first game, showed that he had not in the least lost any of his pre-war ability, by next netting a neat basket. From this time on both sides started a series of end to end rushes, with hot heavy work on the part of all. Finally the whistle blew for half-time with the score for this well-contested half 12-11 for McGill.

Rapp replaced Forbes in the second half, and opened the period by netting a free shot. Paquette of the "Y." squad, got a basket, and right upon this Laisley and Rapp commenced a bombardment of the Central basket, which brought McGill's lead away up. The remainder of the game, though at all times fast and furious, was almost altogether in the college's favour, and after some neat scoring, in which Rapp was the prominent feature, the game ended with a win for McGill, 44-22.

Each and every member of the college team showed fine style and clever team-work. The pick of the squad, if any individuals are to be marked as outstanding, were Laisley and Rapp, but all the men are to be congratulated for their win, and credit must be given to them all.

The best of the losers were Resch and Gormley, both having many baskets to their credit.

The Intermediate line-up was:

SUBSCRIPTION LISTS FOR ANNUAL OPENED

Books Already Selling Well Among Undergraduates and Graduates

The subscription lists for the 1920 Annual will be opened this morning. The book has been given wide publicity these last few months, and as a result many orders have already been received from both undergraduates and graduates, not only those residing close at hand but even some from points in the Southern States. The Board originally made arrangements with the printers for 500 copies of the book. All of these have already been disposed of, and hence, with new orders, a deposit of $1.00 will have to be made, both to ensure that the customer takes the book, and also to ensure that he gets one. It is the wish of the Board that all the copies printed will be sold, and this is the reason for the protective measure mentioned above.

By the end of this week it is expected that all the copy will be sent to the printers, and so the book will be issued within a few weeks. Already proofs of most of the drawings have been received, and also those of some of the photographs. The drawings have printed exceptionally well; all the outlines are clear and the figures of a very good size. The photographs have been touched up by the photographer, so that they make clear-cut copies. Details such as the eyes show up very clearly, and will add a fine appearance to the page.

The border is narrower than has been customary, but its inside dimensions have been increased. For both these reasons the page will look well and will not be crowded.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1919.

FOR ALL LIVE STUDENTS.

So much has been written in the editorial column of the Daily about the Daily itself, that it is with some hesitation that the subject is resumed. Now, however, that the inflow of new blood into the life of the college, in the shape of returned men, is increasing so gratifyingly it is hoped that the seed will be a cast on fresh and fertile ground.

Judging from the attitude of placid content or discontent with which the Daily is received and read, the large majority of readers look upon the sheet as something which is their due, and if it does not come up to their expectations they proceed to find fault. One can only judge by appearances in such a case, of course, and if the inference drawn is not a correct one it is at least logical. The long and short of the matter is that not enough general interest is taken in the output of what should be an exceedingly important part of the University's activities. Not only should a college paper present opportunities of improving the use of the English language, and surely the necessity for this is obvious, but it ought to ventilate the inside life of the college itself, to permit and encourage criticism, and to be constantly the medium through which the advancement of the University's work should be furthered.

McGill has been exhausted of her men by the war, but now that they are beginning to come back—those that are left—no time should be lost in resuming the former general participation in all the societies, clubs and so on, which used to play such a part at McGill.

The Daily has been published without a break throughout the dark days, and now deserves more help and support than it has. Every society should make a point of seeing that its meetings and doings are fully reported in the Daily, and should also be on the alert to inform the Daily office of any news connected with it, which would interest others. This is as helpful to the society as it is to the paper.

There are many ways then of contributing your work to the Daily, whose regular publication represents just now a vast amount of worry and care expended by a very few who can ill afford the time from their studies. Men who are willing to do even one night or afternoon's work per week in the Daily office will always find it waiting for them if they wish to look for it.

This is not to be regarded as an "S.O.S." sent out by a despairing staff, but merely as a timely reminder that the essence of life at a certain university is the interest taken in its affairs apart from studies solely, and that one direction in which McGill men may exert themselves for their own and their college's benefit is that offered by "McGill Daily."

THE FLYING COURSE

The school of aeronautics furnishes the theoretical side of the airman's training, and after he has passed its examination he is transferred to a school of armament, where he is made thoroughly conversant with all the various bombs and guns and other instruments of destruction mounted on a modern machine. It will be recognized that a man must be pretty smart and have all his wits about him to control his machine and also have an eye to getting in a shot at the enemy, and be ready at the same time to drop a bomb on any object of military importance he may see whilst flying over the enemy lines fighting his opponent aviators. It is arranged in the curriculum laid down by the Air Ministry that after passing through the school of aeronautics, the cadet is thoroughly efficient, and great emphasis is laid on the word "thoroughly" throughout the whole training of an airman. The air force cannot do with the man who only half knows his work, and at every stage in his training there are examinations to weed out the airman who will not or cannot make good.

To show the manner in which the instructional work is done, one instance alone may be mentioned, where, to give the cadets a graphic and photographic record of the firing of a Lewis gun, with which the greater proportion of aeroplanes are equipped, over 15,000 separate photographs were taken, so that every movement of the mechanism of the gun was accurately recorded and presented to the students. After having been carefully coached in the theoretical working and use of the guns and bombs, of which there are many types and patterns, too numerous to mention, the cadet is transferred to the aiming range, where, mounted in a stationary plane, he learns to aim, and puts his knowledge of the working of the guns to practical test.

BRITISH BOOK ON THE WAR.

Prof. C. W. C. Oman's book, "The Outbreak of the War in 1914-1918," which is based on British official documents, was published recently. The author has been permitted to see many documents not hitherto published, and has personally been in touch with many diplomatic representatives on the Continent in August, 1914. The book contains the revelations of Prince Lichnowsky, published for the first time in England in full.

R.V.C. UNDERGRADS' SUMMER OCCUPATION

In Interesting Letter—Berry Picking Described

National Service Camp.

Heckville, Aug. 6, 1918.

Dear Peg—At last it's really and truly raining. And it's such agreeable rain! The kind that stays all day and gives a busy farmerette a chance to write, eat, read, mend, talk and sleep. And this is the very first rainy day we've had for over a month. We nearly died of shock when, instead of the banging of the dish pan, the gentle patter of the rain on our tent woke us. Being happy, we immediately burst into song, but we were properly squashed by our next door neighbours in Dug-Out Alley, who think that a good sleep is synonymous with a good time.

Peg, dear, the life here is simply great. It's back to the land all right, all right. We grub in the earth all day long and we sleep pretty close to it at night. Our tents have no floors and our cots sag. But I'll begin at the beginning, and tell you all about everything. Our camp this year is not nearly as big as the one last year. There are only about forty of us. But we have good times enough for eighty. Besides, the girls there are the house-mother, who tries to make camp feel like home for her girls, a cook who makes the best things to eat and heaps of them, and two assistants, who wash dishes, peel potatoes, and do all the odd jobs. Everyone, however, is a volunteer National Service worker.

Our camp is run by the Y.V.C.A. We're awfully lucky, because it's right on Lake Ontario. It—the camp—consists of a tiny house with an enormous verandah and three rows of military tents. The house contains a dining-room, kitchen, two beds—only for the house-mother and one for the cook—a piano and a gramophone. The verandah has a floor. It's the joy of our life. Needless to say, it is used chiefly for dancing. Each tent holds three farmerettes and all their belongings, three cot-beds and three chairs. The tents are old ones from the Niagara Military Camp. They are the most exciting things to live in. You never can tell just where they will leak next. But I haven't mentioned the piece de resistance in "Giggles Inn" tent. It's a most wonderful piece of furniture, made out of two packing cases with wall-pockets of different colours hung on the sides, and covered on the top with white oil-cloth. The inside shelves are comparatively dry. We keep everything in there that we would rather not have in a mouldy condition. The top serves as a resting place for anything from hair pins to shoe polish.

Every few seconds I have to stop and pinch myself to see if I'm awake. Surely this can't be, I loafing in this luxurious fashion at half-past eight of a week-day morning! Peg, I never realized how monotonous anything could be or how many muscles of the acheable variety I possessed till I came here. But don't run away with the idea that I wish I hadn't come—I wouldn't have missed it for worlds!

Every morning, except Sunday, the cook walks up each tent row hanging with a big spoon on a tin dish-pan. This little performance takes the place of an alarm clock. If you have a large appetite you arise at once—because you have to be at work for seven. Getting dressed doesn't take long. I assure you. There's no fussing. We're "out for gore" and we don't look like the farmerettes you see on magazine er's wife comes to the rescue with berries and cream, sausages or whatever is particularly good from the family meal.

The work itself is hard, hot and monotonous, but gloriously healthy. We are all turning into the huskiest specimens imaginable. Hoeing and fruit picking are a wonderful antidote for brain-fag and writer's cramp—not that I've ever suffered from either but some of the girls look as though they might have. However, I must say that now we have all lost that weird after-exams look; and we find working for ten hours in the hot sun as easy as rolling off a log—almost.

Our farmer grows vegetables and fruit. Each particular vegetable and each particular fruit has its own particular ache and pain. I think that the worst job of all is weeding onions. Our farmer is very proud of his onion patch. It's huge! It takes four days to weed and we've weeded it three times already this summer. However, he says that with one more weeding they'll be the finest onions in the province. Personally, I think they look quite all right just as they are. To clean out a patch one hoes between the rows and picks up the weeds. Then the fun begins—one has to weed the row itself. The rows are not far enough apart to work between them. So we have to straddle them resting on one knee. If we get on both knees we squash our weepy little friends. Picking strawberries is not as hard as weeding onions, because one can, at least, change one's position. We usually begin by crawling only infant fashion on our hands and knees. By noon we are sitting on one leg and pushing ourselves along with our hands. By six we are grovelling along—snake-fashion. Picking raspberries is nice because one can straighten one's back. But as a rule the bushes are just high enough for us to walk along on our knees. Raspberries grow in hot, sandy soil. So it's rather hard on the knees. However, we all sent home for football knee-pads. They help wonderfully. Picking thimble-berries is easier in one way than picking raspberries. They don't squash as easily and our boxes fill up quicker. But, ye gods, the thorns! They make us sympathize with the boys breaking through barbed-wire entanglements. Picking cherries is a joy. You're way up among the branches in a world of shining, little, red balls and green leaves—except when the ladder tips. It's beautifully cool after the berry patch. Of course one's feet feel rather queer after balancing all day long on a ladder rung, and one's fingers get blistered and callous from breaking off the cherry-stems, but those are mere details. Hoeing is quite nice because one can stand up to do it. I don't think my knees were made to walk on. It's quite heavy work sometimes, when the soil is clayey or full of thistles, and twitch-grass. It also gives one a kink in one's neck and blisters, but it's quite fun. We have the most thrilling races down the longest rows. Sometimes, sad to relate, we accidentally cut short the life of a plant. However, we immediately pick it up and put it in our pocket. This is known technically as a funeral.

But a farmerette's real day begins at six o'clock, when work is over. Then comes a swim, mail and dinner. The dining-room has a door leading into the kitchen. We all stand in line and, when we get to the door we are given a plate with meat, or macaroni, or whatever we are going to have on it. The vegetables are in grey enamel dishes on the table. The table is a long affair, covered with white oil-cloth. Talk about swank! We usually cover the vegetables and bread with Magic Baking Powder sun-bonnets. An agent left them at the camp. No farmerette would wear one, but they are very useful for depriving flies of our food. For the first few minutes the dining-room is very quiet. We are busy—eating. But when the first pang has been assuaged, the noise begins. New camp songs make their debut at the dinner table. We make them up as we work and give them to the other "N.S. kids" at night to add to their store. By the way, "N.S." stands for National Service. Our badges have N.S. on them. Nobody knew what it meant at first—they guessed everything from No Slacker to No Skirts. When dinner is over each girl makes her own lunch for the next day. Then we are all free for the evening. The silence whistle goes at nine o'clock, and lights out at ten. However, nobody minds how late we blow out our candles, as long as we don't make a row.

I haven't told you much about camp life. But it's really the camp life that makes the work possible. The girls are the best sports imaginable. There is no such thing as grumbling. We have heaps of fun together. Lots of the girls live quite near here, and so boxes from home are quite frequent. These mean feeds in the tents or on the shore. Don't we look forward to them, though? Camp cooking is good but it's terrifically plain! It seems to me that we think chiefly of eats; but then we are living a very primitive life. Do you know that we walk three miles to the nearest town for a sundae? But it's worth it. We don't spend all our spare time eating, though. Last Saturday we gave a garden party for the Convalescent Soldiers' Home. The McGill bunch, seven of us, gave a burlesque squad drill. Some of the officers from the Home showed us how to present, slope, order, etc., arms—arms being hoes—and how to give orders with the proper accent. Each set of girls gave some stunt and the whole camp gave the camp songs and yells. It was good fun. I'm still hoarse from shouting "Squad Shun!"

The thrilling thing happened the other day. We had our movies taken. But I'll tell you all about it next time I write. So if you want to hear about them write to me soon. Even if you don't, write anyway. Letters are the joy of my life. Heaps of love—from "HAYSEED."

MEETING OF R.V.C. UNDERGRADS. HELD

Business Discussed Yesterday at Noon in the Common Room

A meeting of the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society was held yesterday at one o'clock in the Common Room. The first business to come before the meeting was the consideration of the method recently adopted by the McGill Daily, by which all R.V.C. material is placed in an R.V.C. section of the paper. It was the wish of those present that this be continued in future.

It was requested that the rules of the R.V.C. Reading Room be more carefully observed, that no one should study in this room, and that silence be maintained there.

A letter from Mrs. Vaughan was then read, and it was decided that the gift of the Undergraduate Society be sent direct to her.

As there was no further business the meeting then adjourned.

NEW ZEALAND INDUSTRY.

Evidence of the increasing interest shown in industrial problems is furnished by the Anglican Church in the Dominion, the most recent development taking place in Auckland. As one result of quarterly conferences of the Auckland branches of the Church of England Men's Society, prominent labour leaders in Auckland have been invited to address a meeting of the society on labour problems. This decision arises in large measure from the last Dominion conference of the C. M. S., at which it was decided to urge the various branches to study social and economic questions. Dr. A. W. Averill, Anglican bishop of Auckland, told the society that the relations of capital and labour were, no doubt, the question of the future, and the industrial problem would be very serious, even if not revolutionary. He approved, therefore, of the Church endeavouring to get into touch with labour in order to learn what were its real aims and aspirations. This would undoubtedly lead to a better understanding.

It has already been mentioned that the border is to be printed in dark green. This on a white background will make a nice contrast.

Probably the only complete Honor Roll and List of Decorations of McGill men in existence will appear in the book. The Board are planning an important innovation in this section.

From the above points it will be seen that the book will be widely subscribed to among graduates. However, to give undergraduates the first chance, these subscription lists have been opened. Each Faculty will be canvassed by the members of the Annual Board, and upon payment of a deposit of $1.00 a man's name will be put on the list. On delivery of the book the remaining $2.00 is to be paid. If through oversight anyone is forgotten he is asked to leave his name at the Union and his order will be immediately attended to. The members of the Board who will take orders are: R.V.C.—Misses Moody, Nichol and Roston. Law—Mrs. W. Hughes and M. Versailles, Med.—W. Beattie, Duffy and H. C. Cassidy. Arts—J. L. O'Brien, O. B. NEW MEMBERS AT BOXING PRACTICE

Usual Demonstration and Workout at the Union Yesterday

Yesterday, at 5.30 p.m., the B. W. and F. held its regular boxing practice in the Union. There was a good turnout, and it is evident that now that the exams are over, the men are realizing the good that they are deriving from this club and are beginning once more to attend its workouts. Several new members were noticed, and expressed keen admiration for the work.

The benefit of these members, with gave a complete review of the shows he had demonstrated. In construction over, the men were, as customary, lined up according to height and weight, and put to work practising the movements which had just been explained to them. Boxing over, showers were in order, and the men left feeling in fine condition.

A number of men are of the opinion that it is too late to join this club. In this they are mistaken. Now is the time to get into it, and to give it active support so that it might be started in full swing next year.

The next practice will be held on Thursday, at 5.30 p.m. All the members and others interested are requested to be on hand, so that a successful workout may be held.

The second feature of the evening was the McGill-Central "Y" Senior game. Some time ago the McGill men had an easy win over the "Y" men, but since that time hard work and new players have developed the latter squad into a very efficient outfit. The game was at all times well-played, fast and clean. Quick action and good team-work were characteristics of both squads throughout, and the winners got their place by dint of very hard work against strenuous opponents. The first half started off with each team netting a fair share of baskets. Hay and Young showed up well from the first toss-up, and several baskets went to their credit. Le Dain and H. Beecher of the "Y" squad kept the score well-balanced, and the half ended with McGill leading, 17-14.

At the beginning of the second half, Montgomery got hurt in a mix-up, but he was soon back on the floor, going strong as ever. Le Dain and Beecher scored, and shortly after the period opened the score stood 18-12 for the Y. M. It was now seen that it was going to be a fight to the finish by all concerned. After some hot and fast play, the score jumped to 22-19 for the "Y." Not long after, Le Dain raised it to 27-19. By this time the college squad realized that they would have to make strenuous efforts if they were not going to be swamped, so Hay scored for McGill, followed by Hyndman, who came on in the last few minutes of play. With the score 27-23 against McGill, Le Dain netted a last basket, and the whistle announced that the Central Seniors had won—29-23.

Although the Seniors went down to defeat in this game, they are still in high standing in the league, being now tied with North Branch for premier honours. With a little more hard work and a little better luck they will undoubtedly pull through in fine style, for, with "Monty" and Kern to defend the basket, as only they can, and with Hay to get the jump on his man at centre, the McGill team have an excellent backbone for any basketball squad to carry off the league honours.

Last night's line-up was:

NIGHT SCHOOLS IN CUBA.

Four night schools for the education of workmen, the first of this class ever established here, have been opened by the department of public instruction. More than thirty men presented themselves for enrollment at each school on the opening date.

Special attention is to be given to instructions in drawing, a knowledge of which it is considered will be of greatest value to workmen in many branches of the trades and industry.

SPAIN

I am very fond of my country. I love it notwithstanding I acknowledge its backward condition. Nature has endowed us liberally with rich gifts. A fertile country—not so much so as is commonly believed, but, in fact, fertile—admirably situated at one side of Europe, stretching her hand to America across the seas; a sky—oh, the sky! There is not another like it. The air has here, "above all in the south, a transparency. oh, an infinite transparency! The despair of painters. Then this transparency gives greater purity to the outlines; nowhere do points stand out as they do here. In Castile the towers are visible many miles off, and as distinct as if they were only a few steps distant. It is quite evident that this is due to its being above the level of the sea. Then the great power of the sun throws up the contrast between the light and the shade, and gives a distinct outline even to the distant mountains. Only here in the north the vapors floating in the atmosphere rather blur and confuse the colours and make them misty. But, on the other hand, the tones are richer; in the south the shades of the ground are lost in the excessive brilliance of the sky in the universal sense of light. But here what an immense variety of shades! Oh, infinite beauty! Then what power, what changes! In the south the tone is stationary; the immutable light of the sky keeps it the same for many hours, and the same one day as another; but in these provinces, where the light changes every minute, the color varies, too; the composition is perfect, the gradations of color fondus, its general tone is transformed into strong reliefs.
